VENGEANCE FOR A WRONGED CHILD IS SOUGHT BY HUGE MOB

TWO THOUSAND MEN LED BY THE MOTHER

New York Crowd Furious with Wrath Seek Life of Little Girl's Assailant

"KILL HIM! LYNCH HIM!" IS THE CRY

Throng, Unable to Reach Criminal Vents Its Indignant Anger on Innocent Man

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Led by a woman who, alternately in Italian and broken English, cried "Avenge my daughter," a reckless crowd of 2000 people tonight stormed the 14th street car barns of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, where a policeman had sought refuge with a seriously pummeled prisoner.

Paul Sorgerate, a Greek peddler, 30 years of age, had been seen to kiss Grace Josco, an Italian girl of 11 years. A shrill cry from the girl and an impassioned appeal by the mother put the foreigners of the neighborhood in a rage and as the Greek took to his heels, a crowd pursued.

When a block had been covered Sorgerate stumbled and fell, and the mob was upon him, and kicked nearly senseless.

A Noose Around His Head.

The Greek, a powerful man, gained his feet, only to be knocked down again.

By this time someone had snatched a clothesline from the window of a grocery store and the rioters attempted to put the noose over his head. Only the over-eagerness of each rioter to have a hand in the lassooing saved the peddler's neck.

During the confusion a policeman arrived and clubbed his way to the endangered man. For a moment the crowd fell back, and, within that time the officer had dragged his man to the nearby car-barns. Concealing his prisoner in a car, the officer waited for assistance, while the rioters threw themselves against the doors in an effort to force an entrance.

MURDERER CARTS VICTIM'S BODY MILES ACROSS THE DESERT

CORPSE IS FOUND NEAR WALTER SCOTT'S TRAIL

Late Partner of the Dead Man Is under Arrest Charged with the Crime

(Special to The Journal)

GOLDFIELD, Aug. 6.—For the sake of the money known to be in his pockets, John Pavlovich was murdered as he lay asleep on the floor of a cabin at Indian Springs, and the murderer placed the victim's body in a cart, covered as best he could the tell-tale sings of the slaughter with blankets, and rode with the corpse across the burning sands of the desert to a place five miles away, where the human freight was unloaded, the mule turned loose, and the assassin walked back to civilization.

Partner Arrested

Thomas Argentos, a former partner, is under arrest, accused of the crime.

These are the developments today in a crime that has mystified the authorities of Goldfield for two weeks, defying the investigation of the sheriffs of both Nevada and California. A gang of land pirates was suspected until the arrival of James Titus, Scotty's former associate, in this camp.

Titus, Sherman Crumley and Frank Boyle are the men who found the evidence of the crime, the blood stains on the sand beside the Pavlovich cart trail, causing them to follow it to the shack where the murder is supposed to have been committed. They discovered a bullet hole in the floor, they say, in which a piece of lead was embedded. They found a blanket in the corner, its removal disclosing clots of blood on the cloth and confirming the suspicion that the victim received the death-wound as he lay asleep in bed.

Hauled Across Desert

That the corpse was hauled across the desert and deposited on the ranch of Walter Scott is regarded by Titus as an attempt of the murderer to shift the blame for the crime to the Death Valley miner. But the finding of the overalss worn by the victim, that lay 100 yards away from the place where the body was first located, clinches the fact, says Titus, that the deed was committed in the Indian Springs shack.

Titus thinks that the assassin in the cool of the evening harnessed the one mule to the cart with which Pavlovich left Goldfield, bundled the naked corpse into it and stained to deposit the burden where some one would be certain to find it and throw suspicion on Walter Scott, as he stopped the cart within 50 yards of Scotty's trail.

The relatives of the dead man have gone on the search for the assassin. In the meantime Argentos is held, as he was last seen with Pavlovich.

"ROGUE!" OUT GO LAWYERS' FISTS; PEACEMAKER PUNCHED

FRISCO GRAFT TRIAL STARTS FIST FIGHT

Attorneys Battle in Judge Dunne's Courtroom and Wild Time Ensues; Ends in Apology

(By Associated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 6—"Rogue," said Attorney Hiram W. Johnson to Attorney Bert Schlesinger of the defense in the Halsey bribery case this morning before Judge Dunne.

"Infamous rogue!" said Schlesinger, shaking his forefinger.

Then they jumped at each other. The only physical sufferer in the brief battle was Assistant District Attorney William H. Cook, the bridge of whose nose was abraised and bloodied inadvertently by Schlesinger's ring when he was engaged in guiding a high righthand over swing to the left eye of Mr. Johnson. The face of Mr. Cook being interposed, the blow reached a premature destination.

After the fight which lasted less than a minute, both of the warring attorneys apologized to the court and no judgment of contempt was entered against them nor were they rebuked.

Th eFray Opens

Charles M. Depew was the juror under examination. Responding to questions by Mr. Johnson he said he had a bias and prejudice against the prosecution because it was being financed by a specially raised fund of $100,000.

"Then," queried Mr. Johnson very sharply, "you don't think it's a decent thing for private individuals to subscribe money for the prosecution of thieves, rascals, scoundrels and rogues, do you?"

"One moment," cried Mr. Schlesinger, springing to his feet, and thrusting an index finger at the court. "If your honor please, I object to the language of counsel and I assign it as unprofessional and misconduct."

Mr. Johnson also arose with alacrity, his face flushed with excitement. Half turning to Schlesinger, he said:

"This Rogue Here"

"And I object, if your honor please, to being stigmatized by this rogue here," nodding his head jerkingly toward his opponent.

Schlesinger faced him.

"And I say you are an infamous rogue," he exclaimed.

Then they began to fight.

It will never be recorded who started the first blow but the best judgment at the improvised ringside was that Mr. Johnson aggressed. Mr. Johnson is of medium height and quite heavy. He wears glasses. Mr. Schlesinger is a bit taller, some pounds lighter and possesses an obvious advantage in reach. The space in their immediate vicinity was a whirling tangle of clenched fists and the interjected forms of bystanding peacemakers for the best part of a minute.

The Mix-up

Attorneys McPike and Humphrey sprang to Schlesinger and he was pulled back until he lay face up over the arms of a chair. District Attorney Langdon, Assistant District Attorney Cook and D. M. Duffy, Johnson's law partner, surrounded Johnson. Roudolph Spreckels and Charles

PETROLEUM THREE MILES FROM RENO

TRUCKEE RIVER IS NOW A PROVEN FIELD

Trend of the Shales Is Disclosed by the Cut Made for an Irrigation Ditch

They struck oil yesterday three miles from Reno—the real thing, black, heavy globules, at first, that floated on the water, and then a dark stream of viscous peroleum. The Truckee oil-fields are proven.

The quantity and quality and the depth at which it will be found in volume—these are secrets yet to be revealed by the drill that is working day and night at McLeod's well. But now Mr. McLeod knows the oil is there and at 300 feet a heavy flow is expected.

J. H. McLeod, who is responsible for the enterprise, took an automobile ing about four feet at each stroke of consisting of A. C. Norcross of the Andy Hampel Brokerage Company, R. C. Capel of Los Angeles, and a Journal reporter. As the party arrived, the drill was at work, rising and fall- of the 17-inch casing and the line the arm extending from the center of the big housed-in drum. Within a few minutes the huge stem with its accompanying bit was hoisted clear shale, dipped toward the perpendicreeled in on the wheel showed the depth to be 74 feet.

Oil Sand and Shale

The formation, where it is cut by the irrigating canal, consists of the sands called "oil sands," lying on top of white shale, each stratum having a dip of about 40 degrees and a southeast strike. The theory on which Expert J. W. Frank selected this spot for drilling was that the oil sands, through which the oil had originally filtered, lying against the shale, dipped toward the perpendicular line to be followed by the drills, and that, somewhere below, this inclined shale plane was met by a similar plane, dipping in the opposite direction from the other side of the hill. Where they met, he said, the oil would be found.

The party was conducted around the bank of the canal to the opposite side of the hill, and there was shown the croppings of the identical shale, clearly pitching toward the other wall, and at about the same angle. This shale is light-colored and chalky in appearance, and so porous and gas-filled that when slabs of it are tossed into the canal it refuses to sink, but floats away.

Capel Sees the Oil

Just as the party returned to the derrick, a shout from Mr. Capel, who had preceded the others, drew attention to the fact that he had made a discovery at the back of the derrick house, where water from the bailer was being run down the side of the

REFUSE CATHOLICS USE OF FALLON SCHOOL FOR SERVICES

Father Horgan of Sparks Barred out Last Sunday by Churchill County Commissioners

(Special Dispatch to The Journal)

FALLON, Nev., Aug. 6.—The Catholics of Fallon are feeling greatly mortified and irritated over the issuance of an order by the county commissioners, which resulted Sunday morning in closing the doors of the new high school building against Father Horgan of Sparks and the members of the faith who had gathered for divine services.

It has been the custom on the occasion of this clergyman's visits to Fallon for him to conduct the services at the school.

No notice was given of the withdrawal of this courtesy and had not W. D. Clark, the owner of the skating rink, tendered Father Horgan the use of his building, it might have become necessary to hold the services in the fields.

FACING A DEADLY FIRE FRENCHMEN CUT WAY INTO CASA BLANCA

Shot Through Both Hands, Naval Ensign Still Leads Forces Against the Moors

TANGIER, Aug. 6.—Casa Blanca was bombarded Sunday all day long. Meanwhile fierce street fighting was in progress in the town itself. When the steamer Anatole left there Sunday night the guns were still booming and the killing in the streets had not ceased. The Anatole reached here today with the news.

On Saturday night the Moorish pasha at Casa Blanca was advised that troops would be landed the next day. He gave assurances that the city would remain calm, but at 5 o'clock Sunday morning, when a detachment of 50 French marines, in command of an ensign, landed in the city, they had hardly passed through the water gate before a volley was fired on them point-blank range from a detachment of regular Moorish troops.

SULLIVAN AND RICE PART COMPANY; LATTER TELLS OF ROW

ASSERTS BUSINESS WILL BE CARRIED ON

But Declares That It Will Only Be When Larry's Connection with Concern Is Ended

CORPORATION SOLVENT; SULLIVAN IN MINORITY

Man Who Broke Loose Monday Says He Has Been Robbed and Books Must be Experted

According to statements made yesterday by George Graham Rice, who represents the majority interests in Sullivan & Rice, Inc., the internecine war which was precipitated when Larry Sullivan broke bounds on Monday morning, will end in the next few days with the complete retirement of L. M. Sullivan from all connection with the business.

Statements made yesterday by Mr. Rice seem to indicate that the troubles which began Monday morning, when, as Mr. Sullivan says, he "went into the office, hit a few clerks, and took possession of the nooks," are attributable to the fact that Sullivan has been trying to force the majority interest in the corporation to buy his holdings of stock at a fancy figure.

This, Mr. Rice says, will not be done. Another statement made by Mr. Rice, and which he says he is prepared to back up at any time with the evidence, is that the corporation is wholly solvent, its liabilities at the outside, except to the stockholders, amounting to much less than $15000, o fwhich sum at least one-half may be classed as family debts; that is, moneys due to members of Mr. Rice's own family and to others connected by marriage with him. Against these liabilities, the corporation owns stocks and properties which are declared to have a market value of more than $150,000. Mr. Rice stated further, when seen at his residence last evening, where he has been confined since Saturday afternoon by an attack of ptomaine poisoning, that Mr. Sullivan will be given a reasonable time in which to return to the offices of the removed on Monday morning, and that company the books which he forcibly

Sullivan and Rice Part Company; Result of Monday's Row; Rice Describes Relations

Declares Larry Has bu A Small Interest and Must Retire from the Concern

if this is not done the matter will be taken into the courts for final settlement.

So far as the future of the corporation is concerned, Mr. Rice declares that as soon as he is able to be about, and attend to affairs, the business will be resumed and carried on in the same manner that has been intended and planned. Mr. Rice's statement regarding the corporation and the embroglio which was precipitated by Sullivan's action Monday morning is as follows:

Rico Goes Into Details

"Sullivan & Rice, Inc., was organized early this year. Mr. Sullivan was not wanted nor invited to come in. But he begged and pleaded. Finally it was agreed that he should contribute toward the capital stock $25,000 in cash, and equities in several properties. In return for this he was to have 50 percent of the stock. I was to have 50 percent of the stock in return for my services, the agreement being that I should devote my entire time and energies to the business of the corporation.

"After we had organized and started in business, Sullivan failed to come through with the amount he had agreed to put in the concern. Instead of $25,000 he contributed only $12,500. On this account his interest was reduced to 40 percent of the capital stock, and Mrs. Rice up in $10,000, Sullivan forfeited. In order that the company might receive ample legal counsel and be protected from a legal standpoint in all of its transactions, we decided to take Judge E. R. Dodge in as a director.

Mrs. Sullivan Holds Voting Power

"Therefore, Mr. Sullivan and I each assigned 2 percent of our interests to Judge Dodge, and Mrs. Rice contributed 1 percent. This left Sullivan only 38 percent of the stock, and that 38 percent was divided in this way: A few shares were made out in the name of L. M. Sullivan, and the remainder of the 38 percent interest was made out in the name of his wife, it being distinctly understood at the time that on account of Sullivan's predisposition toward erratic conduct, the voting power, which otherwise he might have had in the corporation, should be vested in his wife.

"The business which Sullivan & Rice, Inc., has undertaken up to this time consists of the promotion of only one mining company. The corporation's interest in this company, which consists of the entire ownership stock, is pooled, and not a share of it has been sold, the corporation having decided from the start to cast its fortune with the property.

"Under the by-laws of Sullivan & Rice dividends are to be declared annually, when earned. The affairs of the concern proceeded smoothly, until in May, when a situation arose which necessitated the presence of one officer of the corporation in New York.

Sullivan's Mission to New York

"Mr. Sullivan was selected for this mission. He went to New York, and almost immediately upon his arrival there he was arrested in connection with a civil suit brought by Frank Colton and growing out of the Bullfrog Rush promotion of the old L. M. Sullivan Trust Company of Goldfield. Larry's legal expenses in this affair amounted to $1250, half of which has been charged to me, and he charged $1000 to the corporation for traveling expenses. These two sums represent the balance of the $15,000 which Sullivan was to pay in for his 40 percent interest in Sullivan & Rice. In addition to this he is a creditor of the company to an amount not to exceed $1000, due for other outlays on the trip, for which he has been given credit on the books.

"He has been vice-president of the company from the start, and has partaken of the conduct of the business.

"That is a plain statement of Sullivan's interest in and relation to the corporation. While Sullivan was absent in New York, and while I was here in Reno, engaged in developing the business of the firm, Mrs. Rice deposited with the firm between $4000 and $5000 in addition to the $10,000 she had originally paid for her stock. Other relatives of mine also deposited sums amounting to about $3000, and these people are creditors to the extent of their deposits.

Larry Tried to Get Into N. Y. Politics

"After his arrival in New York, and following the Colton affair, in which his defense was prepared from the offices of the company in this city, Sullivan began to send telegraphic reports of the success of his mission. This went on for a time, until about the middle of June, when there suddenly came a climax in the reports, and owing to the peculiar conditions, I decided that I should make a trip to New York, taking Judge Dodge with me as the corporation's counsel.

"Upon arriving there I found that Sullivan instead of doing the business he had reported to this office, had been spending his time leading the life of the very swiftest of the swift crowd that hangs out at the Waldorf Astoria, and besides that, he was trying to butt into New York politics on the strength of an alleged, but nonexistent, relationship with "Big Tim" Sullivan, who is the real boss of Tammany Hall. He had neglected the corporation business, which took him to New York, and I spent six weeks trying to straighten out what he had not done in the same length of time, but which he had reported to the office here as having been successfully accomplished.

Trying to Get Sullivan Out

"I returned to Reno only two weeks ago. Mr. Sullivan preceded me by about 10 days. Saturday I was taken violently ill with what proved to be pelled to take to my bed. Up to that moment there had never been a word of complaint from Sullivan regarding the conduct of the business of the corporation, although after my discoveries as to his conduct in New York and upon his return here, I had directed our cashier—Mr. Charles B. Stone—to endeavor to make an arrangement with him by which he should retire from the corporation.

"Mr. Stone had practically negotiated this arrangement, when about this time Sullivan stated to me that his interests in the company instead of being 38 percent was only about 12 percent, inasmuch as two-thirds of the money he had put in had been supplied by Peter Grant and Jack Grant, former partners of his, and his interests being so small he thought he could make more money by being in for himself entirely on some proposition. He named a local gambling house of which he thought he could get the management, as important enough to deserve attention. We refused to allow the stock to be cut up so that he could parcel it out to the men whom he state dhad given him two-thirds of the money, because he had originally given his word that the money all came from himself and his wife, and he had agreed not to dispose of it, and that the voting power should never be changed, and because the Grant brothers, while personally very amiable chaps, were not invited originally into the corporation, and it was no desire of those who owned the control to admit any new co-partners.

Sullivan Gets the Lease.

"Last Friday, Judge Dodge came to me and told me we could get the lease on the room we are now occupying in the Dean building for $200 a month. I sent Sullivan to negotiate for the lease, and he reported that he had secured it for the corporation. I thereupon instructed the cashier to give him a check for $200 to pay for the first month's rent, and asked Sullivan to get the lease signed up. I offered to go along with him, but he insisted that he could do it all alone. He left the office at 11 a. m. last Friday, and did not return. On Saturday I phoned to him to his home, and asked him why he did not send the lease in, and he said he would send it own right away. But he failed to do so.

"I then asked for a copy of the lease from Mr. Dean, and found that it was made out in the name of L. M. Sullivan, instead of Sullivan & Rice, although the lease had really been granted to the company, and the rent paid by the company. I then recalled a transaction in Goldfield where a lease of the same character was supposedly made for the Sullivan Trust Company, and when the final showdown came the lease had passed into the hands of a brother-in-law of Sullivan's, and was sold by him and the profits pocketed by him, and I and the corporation were left in the cold. I therefore immediately called Sullivan on the phone, and told him the company could not stand for that kind of business. I told him to send the lease down right away so I could have it changed.

The Trouble Becomes Acute.

"Mr. Dean promised to stay in town all that day so this could be done, and in fact told me that he would instruct his atorney, Sardis Summerfield, to draw up another lease in the name of Sullivan & Rice, Inc., and he would exchange it on the return of the lease made in the name of L. M. Sullivan. I am informed by Judge Dodge that the corporation of Sullivan & Rice practically owns that lease now, and the fact that it remains in the name of Mr. Sullivan cuts no ice whatsoever, we having paid the original amount to bind it, and Sullivan having acted in bad faith throughout.

"Aside from this, Mr. Sullivan asked me last Saturday to rent part of the building to his friend, J. H. Sullivan, of Manhattan, and allow him to conduct a brokerage office of his own on part of the premises. To this I took natural objection. I told Sullivan that nobody could reasonably expect to be permited to have a slice of the business of our incorporation without the majority of the directors voting in favor of it, and that is what Sullivan's idea practically amounted to. He then said he had offered to go into business with J. H. Sullivan, and wanted to know if we objected, and we said we certainly did if it was mining or stock business, as he could not be in one concern and serve it faithfully at the same time he was trying to serve another.

A Transaction With Judge Dodge.

"He had, since his return from New York, been complaining of his need of ready cash.

As an instance of this pressure on him for cash I may state that while we were in New York, a debt was incurred by Judge Dodge of about $550, and this money was supplied Sullivan to pay Dodge. He told the judge that he would pay it to hi mat the hotel. The judge and Sullivan went west together, and just before they got on the train, Sullivan told the judge he would pay the money to him on the train. Then he told the judge he would pay it in Chicago, and finally put him off until they reached Reno. Since then the judge has not been able to get a cent, although the money is credited to Sullivan on the books of the corporation.

Sullivan Retaliates by The Claim That He Has Been Victimized --Next Courts

"After I declined to give my consent to J. H. Sullivan starting business in the same room where Sullivan & Rice were installed, I was taken sick and came to my home under the belief that things would proceed as usual. I was not notified of any dissatisfaction on Sullivan's part, and did not know that he was contemplating anyd rastic measures, adverse to the corporation's interests, in fact, I thought he might be expecting a few against himself, until my secretary—Mr. Pond—came to my home on Monday morning and told me that L. M. Sullivan, accompanied by Mrs. Sullivan and the same J. H. Sullivan for whom he had petitioned on Saturday, had entered the office, punched one of the clerks—who, by the way, although about one-third Larry's size, gave him blow for blow—attempted to discharge all the other employes, and had taken forcible possession of a part of the books.

Larry's Meekly Submission.

"I immediately requested Mrs Rice to go to the office, being myself in bed, attended by Dr. Walker and unable to go. After Mrs. Rice's arrival there, Larry lapsed into that attitude of meek submissiveness which he always shows in the face of anyone who has the courage to stand up for their rights or to protect themselves against his coarse, bull-dozing tactics.

"That is the story so far as it concerns the public, except for a statement which I wish to reiterate, and that is that Sullivan & Rice is entirely solvent, able to pay its small obligations upon demand, and that unless Larry Sullivan returns at once the books he obtained possession of by an act amounting to burglary, since his rights as a stockholder gave him no right to forcibly enter the premises of the corporation and forcibly take possession of its property, the matter will be taken into court for settlement.

"I know very well what has transpired in Larry's poor mind. In the first place, it is Larry's every-day brak that he always gets the best of it' in a business deal, and in the second, he thinks that by making a disturbance he can force the majority interests at stake, which are much larger than his own, to pay him his own price to get him out. He will not succeed. Either he will be good, and tender his resignation, and allow a successor to be elected who will behave himself, or the corporation will of its own accord or through court process, sell its various stocks, properties and interests, pay up its small indebtedness, and dissolve, and a new corporation immediately take its place as successor, without the millstone of L. M. Sullivan around its neck.

Larry Has Not Been Robbed.

"So far as Sullivan's mutterings while in his cups that he has been cheated is concerned, the most charitable way to take them is to attribute them to the condition he probably was in at the time he made them.

"Nobody but a fool would suspect me of taking a business advantage of a man like Sullivan, whose illiteracy and low order of intelligence have always stirred in me feelings of the utmost pity. If I wanted to cheat him it would be like taking candy from a baby, if I may be allowed to use such an old expression. And that is hardly my style. As for the books which Larry Sullivan has now in his possession, it seems absurd that he should be experting them at his own home when he could have had them experted in the office upon demand. Is it not ridiculous?

"For a man who cannot distinguish the debit side from the credit side of a ledger, talk of experting books is nonsense, anyway. The books have been kept by Charles B. Stone, who was formerly one of the experts in the employ of Klink, Bean & Co., the San Francisco auditors, and who was nominated for the position of cashier by Sullivan himself.

"Again, no records appear in those books that Sullivan was not personally acquainted with, as he has been consulted on all propositions involving the busines sof the concern. As a matter of fact, I have not looked into them myself in two months, or since before my departure for New York. In the first place, I have not had time. In the second place, I know how absurd it is to think that anybody could be so foolish as to cook up accounts.

End Is at Hand, Says Rice.

"I regret very much that what I believe to be the wholly irresponsible act of a man with whom I have been associated in business compels me to in this public manner to tear the mask from his weaknesses and absurdities, and force him to stand before a community in his true colors, but the interest with which I am entrusted are more important to me than is concealment of the idiosyncracies of Larry Sullivan, between whom and myself and my associates there can never be any further business relations except such as are necessary to terminate his connections with Sullivan & Rice, Inc."

L. M. Sullivan absolutely refuses to make any statement, excepting that he has been robbed, and that he took the books for the purpose of determining the amount of the "robbery." How robbery could be committed, why he really removed the accounts from the possession of the establishment—these things Sullivan will not discuss.

In the municipa lcourt Sullivan was fined $10 yesterday for striking 19-year-old Irwin Herzig. The defendant was glad to plead guilty, and in the tardiness of the complaining witness to arrive, Judge Bell imposed the penalty.

M. B. Pond, Rice's secretary, has been released from the custody of the constable on $500 bail. The justice has not set the time for hearing the charge of assault to kill.

MOTHER OF WRONGED CHILD LEADS MOB

"Kill Him! Lynch Him!"

Police reserves stood off the mob while the Greek was hustled into a patrol wagon and then, through a crowd taht cried, "Kill him, Lynch him," the police fought their way to the nearest station house.

Sorgerate was in bad shape, but it was thought inadvisable to attempt his removal to the hospital during the turmoil. His eyes were blackened, nose broken, scalp torn, face lacerated and his body black with bruises.

Cheated of their man, the crowd vented its fury on Gaston Keriskell, an unoffending workman homeward bound. As he was passing the rioters he was pointed out by a boy, at the same time yelling, "That's the man's friend. He was there, too." Keriskell was pounded until he was unconscious. The police reserves finally got the injured man and removed him to a hospital.

Mauled by a Mob

Edward Pratt, a millwright, 46 years old, was accused by Nellie and Helen Farrell, each about 10 years old, of improper remarks. He was frightfully mauled on 57th street before rescued from a mob by the police.

Miss Wildrer, a trained nurse, was walking home early today after attending a patient. Near Manhattan avenue and 106th street, an Italian accosted her. When she repulsed him the Italian knocked her down and clutching her throat with his hand dragged her to the stoop of an apartment house. Miss Wildrer managed to withdraw a hatpin from her hat and jabbing her assailant, caused him to loosen his hold upon her throat.

Miss Wildrer then screamed for help and the Italian fled. Policemen heard her cries and gave chase and found the man hiding under a clump of bushes. He was dragged out by the police and identified by Miss Wildrer.

THE JUMBO LEDGE

E. P. Farnham, president of the Jumbo Ledge Mining Company, with properties at Walker lake, is down from camp with a good report of conditions, says the Goldfield Chronicle. The company is developing a group of claims a mile and one-half from the new town of Bonanza on the east side of the lake, and has let a contract to drive the crosscut tunnel into the vein. The tunnel is already in 40 feet and the estimated distance, 85 feet, is covered in the contract. On the surface the vein assays $190 a ton in gold, and on both sides of the Jumbo Ledge high grade ore is being sacked. One man is breaking ore just above on teh hill that runs $200, and Mr. Farnham thinks that the Ledge company will have easy sailing, with plenty of good ore above the tunnel level, when the adit reaches the vein.

LAWYERS FIGHT IN FRISCO GRAFT TRIAL

W. Cobb of the prosecution became alert figures of intervention, and even the defendant, Theodore V. Halsey, jumped up nad wedged into the scurling mass.

Being effectually separated Mr. Johnson drew his handkerchief and wiped the drops of exertion from his brow. Mr. Schlesinger was released by his friends and assisted to his feet. After they had glared at each other for a breath, Schlesinger addressed the court:

They Apologize

"I wish to extend my apology to the court," he said.

"So likewise do I," said Mr. Johnson.

"I regret very much that any such scenes should have occurred. Now will pou proceed with the examination, Mr. Johnson?" suggested Judge Dunne.

After Juror Depew had been excused on challenge by the prosecution and a new venire of 50 names had been ordered for the completion of the jury, Judge Dunne adjudged Mr. Johnson guilty of contempt of court and imposed a fine of $25, on the score that his language in calling Mr. Schlesinger a rogue, was of itself misconduct in the presence of the court and responsible for the fist fight.

And Mr. Cook Mourns

Mr. Cook at first blamed Mr. Johnson for the crimson asterisk on the bridge of his nose, but afterwards learned that it was due to a diamond ring on the right hand of Mr. Schlesinger.

"I was the helpless center of a fighting mass," said he, applying his handkerchief to the bleeding member.

FAMOUS TEA CUP MINE OF CHERRY CREEK AGAIN HOISTING RICH ORE

That the old Tea Cup mine, which produced millions of dollars in silver bullion in the palmy days of Cherry Creek, is experiencing a rejuvenation, is evident from the discovery of a body of high-grade ore at the 1,000-foot level of the old working shaft.

The ore was encountered several days ago, and is of a shipping grade. The management is now engaged in hoisting the ore to the surface.

The Tea Cup mine is controlled by the Biscuit Mining Company, an organization composed principally of Salt Lake capitalists, headed by P. H. Cannon, of Cherry Creek, and Frank J. Cannon, of Salt Lake.—News.

YOUNG GIRLS; OLD TRAVELERS

Sixteen-Year Misses From Texas in Reno on a Tour of Pacific Coast Towns.

JUST OUT OF HOUSTON SCHOOL

"See America First, Especially Nevada," Seems to Be Their Motive in the Trip.

From Houston, Texas, to this city, with frequent stopovers en route, Miss Pansy P. Holman and Miss Earline Byrd Redding, two girls who are not more than 16 years of age, have toured a large part of the Pacific coast towns unescorted. The little maids have no fears of travel, they regard dangers with light heart under the protection of western chivalry. They have even learned to tip the dining-car waiters with the grace of a born tourist.

Whether they were inspired by "See America First," or because they had no longing for a trip abroad, or whether they just came this way to view the real Nevada—by daylight—the visitors have not admitted for publication. Anyway, they are here, and staying at the home of Mrs. D. Troth and Hazel Troth Besides, Dr. J. W. Scott will see that they do not forget their purpose and go prospecting. He will start them towards Lake Tahoe tomorrow.

The Misses Holman and Redding finished the course of instruction in the public school at Houston a few weeks ago. Their work ended, they were supplied with funds by their parents, and permitted to start on the rounds of the best cities in seven states. Being chums, the girls have enjoyed every minute of their time. Here is the itinerary: From Houston the first stop was made in the Panhandle, then to Delhart, to Denver, to Manitou, to Cripple Creek, to Victor, to Salt Lake, and to Reno. The life in the Colorado mining camps was particularly interesting to the young ladies.

Lake Tahoe, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Mt. Lowe, Catalina Islands and the Pecos river country will be the places where they will stop on the journey from this city.

POSTOFFICE TO COST $150,000

Additional Appropriation for the Federal Building in Reno Is Made—Work to Begin.

TO BE FINISHED OCTOBER, 1908

Colonial in Style, With Ten Large Columns on the Virginia Street Front.

Reno's new federal building will cost more than $150,000, an additional appropriation of over $20,000 having been authorized by the government after the acceptance of bids from a local firm for the construction of stone pillars. The work will begin immediately to allow the completion of the structure, by the Northwestern Construction Company by October 15, 1908.

The entire cornice of the front will be veneered with limestone, the columns composed of blocks of that material, the lobby and halls finished in marble and the building made fireproof Samples of the stone, comparing to the Bedford product, have been furnished by Mr. Sonognini, a local stone worker with a quarry north of this city.

The exterior mill-supplied window sills, a large part of the brick to be used and the steel beams for the reinforcement of the concrete walls have been stored in the warehouse of the Northwestern Construction Company, awaiting the notice from Washington that the time has come for building

So much has the price of materials increased since the Northwestern Construction Company made its first bid for the job of constructing the building, that Eugene Schuler, manager for the corporation here says little profit will be made. Even an actual loss he says, may be incurred by the acceptance of the work now.

The federal building will be of the colonial style of architecture. Ten large columns will support the portico facing on Virginia street. The structure will be three stories, including the basement. The entire first floor will be occupied by the postoffice and the second by the surveyor-general's headquarters.

JAP OFFICER DEFENDS RUSS

(Associated Press Special Cable)

PARIS, Aug. 6.—Captain Tsuneda, the Japanese military attache here, who, while upon the staff of General Nogi, conducted the negotiations for the surrender of Port Arthur, in an open letter today defends, General Stoessel, the defender of the fortress, upon the eve of the latter's trial by court-martial for surrendering to the Japanese.

All the Russians' food was exhausted and the 20,000 Russians under arms were, he said ,in no condition to fight. General Stoessel, according to the Japanese officer, might have held out for a fortnight longer, but the result would have been an inevitable massacre, in which it would have been difficult to distinguish combatants from non-combatants. Captain Tsuneda says:

"If others forget, we remember Port Arthur lost us 60,000 lives by the gunfire. We dug 40 kilometres of parallels and expended 30,000,000 rounds of ammunition. European history chronicles the glorious capitulation of Port Arthur and it is so considered in Japan. That is why the Emperor of Japan ordered General Nogi to treat General Stoessel with all the honors due to a gallant soldier. His own country should treat him likewise."

Many Locations Filed.

There is much excitement throughout the district concerning the oil prospects, and this manifests itself daily in the filing of locations on land The recorder's office is kept busy Yesterday the following entries were made: William Fowler, J. A. Waltman, Edward H. Golightly, Robert Robins, Poney Mayhew, Thomas A. Hough, W. D. Jones and Al Bergman. These are the latest to file on oil lands close to Reno. They have taken up 1760 acres on Alum creek, in 11 different claims of 160 acres each. Their filing was recorded yesterday afternoon.

WOMAN'S BODY IN A TRUNK

Middle-aged Couple Have a Corpse on Their Hands and Try to Get Rid of It

HEAD AND FEET IN A VALISE

Monte Carlo People Tell a Story That the Police Think Is at Least Questionable

(Associated Press Special Cable)

MARSEILLES, Aug. 6.—A trunk belonging to a man and woman who arrived here today from Monte Carlo attracted the attention of the baggagemaster, who caused it to be opened. It was found to contain the body of a woman cut to pieces.

The man and woman owning the trunk were arrested They had asked that it be forwarded to London.

The couple, who are middle-aged and gave the names of Mr. and Mrs. Gold, residents of Monte Carlo, denied that they committed the crime and informed the examining magistrate that they knew the victim only slightly. While the latter was at their home, the Villa Melesimy, on Sunday last, Mr and Mrs. Gold said, the woman's lover arrived and blew her brains out. The Golds, fearing they would b ecompromised, tried to get rid of the corpse. The head and feet were in the Golds' valise and the rest of the body was in the trunk.

The autopsy seemed to upset the story told by the Golds. It was shown that the murdered woman was seized from behind and held while she was stabbed to death. A commission has been sent to Monte Carlo to investigate the crime.

STRUCK OIL THREE MILES OUT OF RENO

hill. The party quickly made its way to where he was intently looking at something in the water. There, sure enough, was the oil

Great globules and black strings of it were seen on the surface of the swift running, muddy current. And if anyone doubted the evidence of his eyes, his nose told him that what he saw floating on the water was petroleum, as the odor was unmistakable

At first some of the party were inclined to think they were being "joshed," and that a little oil had been poured out with the water from the bailer as a joke, but a visit inside the house quickly dispelled such an idea The conditions were such as to make a thing of the sort impracticable, even if anyone had had such an intention.

Water is run into the hole being made by the drill in order to convert the material ground up by its progress into mud, as this does not cave so readily as would the dry material. This water and the soft mud is bailed out from time to time in order to clear the way for the drill, and it was during this process that the oil found was brought to the surface.

How the Drill Works

When the hole had been cleared of mud and water, the 600-pound bit, surmounted by its 35-foot stem, weighing 2000 pounds, was again lowered into the mouth of the casing and once more the drill was set in motion.

The casing, which is iron pipe in lengths of about ten feet, riveted together much after the fashion of an ordinary stove-pipe, follows the drill, settling by its own weight into the hole prepared for it by the bit. While the party was in the derrick house, this casing settled into the earth about seven feet, every blow of the heavy drill being plainly audible from above.

The method of drilling at present employed consists in hoisting the heavy drill and stem about four feet from the bottom of the hole, and then suddenly slacking the line, letting the heavy weight fall to the bottom, the drill turning as it falls. This grinds the material encountered to a pulp, which, mixed with the water, becomes thin mud, and is bailed out by means of a huge iron cylinder with a trap in the bottom, so arranged as to be forced up when the cylinder is lowered, or plunged into the water and closed when lifted.

Bailer Brings Up More.

The party seated around the derrick house watched the whole operation of drilling. After the casing had settled down to nearly a level with the floor, the bailing operation was repeated. Again the big cylinder dumped its load of muddy water into the little ditch, and again was the oil seen and smelled.

The striking of the oil was a great surprise to Mr. McLeod and his men, because of the short distance drilled. No further indications than those described in The Journal of yesterday were expected till a much greater distance had been reached. Oil in quantity is not anticipated before a depth of 300 feet is reached.

A strange thing to the unitiated was witnessed by the party yesterday. While the drill was out of the casing, one of the men looked down the pipe and was much surprised to find that he could see the bottom of the hole very clearly, although it was 74 feet deep. There was a little water in the bottom, and in this even the ripples could be seen, making it appear as if light were being let in from the bottom. This was due to the wet sides of the pipe, polished by the action of the cable, reflecting the light. Those who looked into the casing also discovered the fact that the odor emited was decidedly that of oil.

HIS HEIRS MUST WAIT 90 YEARS

Eccentric War Veteran Ties Up His Huge Estate in an Unusual Will.

WANTED TO BURN LOUISVILLE

Man Who Built First 800 Miles of Illinois Central Causes Trouble by Bequests.

(By Associated Press)

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Aug. 6.—The probating of the will of Colonel Thomas Snell is causing lively interest in Central Illinois and Northern Iowa, where he has property valued at nearly $2,000,000

Of five children, only one son, Richard Snell, of Clinton, Ill., is living. Yet Colonel Snell cut off this only son entirely. In fact, the entire estate is put in trust and is not to be distributed until 20 years after the death of the youngest heir.

Wait 90 Years.

The youngest daughter of Mrs. William Dinsmore, of San Jose, Cal., is the youngest heir-at-law, and should she live until 70 years of age, the estate will remain in trust for 20 years longer than that, or 90 years.

It is estimated that if the directions of the testator are carried out to the letter and the estate not divided for 75 or 100 years, it will, with its earnings, amount to close to $1,000,000,000.

The heirs-at-law will attempt to show what the eccentricity of the testator incapacitated him from making an equitable distribution of his property, and they will seek to have the will set aside In this they will be strongly aided by the known mental and physical failings of Colonel Thomas Snell.

An Eccentric

An eccentric, shrewd, close and grasping by nature, he was at times fanciful and flighty. In war times he proposed the sacking and burning of Louisville, because some of the rebels refused to quarter Union troops in their households For this he was put in jail by General Boyle.

Colonel Snell made his first big money building railroads, starting at the Illinois Central, when it was first projected south from Freeport. He built 800 miles of that road and afterward 150 miles of a number of other roads. Later he turned his attention to manufacturing, banking and landed investments.

JOHNSTON ELECTED SENATOR

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug 6.—The legislature today elected former Governor Joseph F Johnston, nominee of the primary and of the caucus, to be United States Senator in the place made vacant by the death of Senator Pettus.

To celebrate the fifth birthday of Miss Kate Darragh, the granddaughter of Mrs. Charles B. Stone, a pretty party was given a number of children Monday at the Riverside hotel The babies were given the dining hall for their amusement. They danced, played games and dined Among those present were Helen and Elizabeth Flanigan, Helen Slater, Mildred Teague, Harry Gosse, Paul and John Flanigan.

Smallpox Patient at Large

With face and hands covered with smallpox pustules in an aggravated form, a foreigner was mingling with the crowds in the gambling houses last night, rubbing elbows with hundreds of people. No one suspected the dangerous disease the man was suffering from until the floor manager at one saloon discovered him at one of the tables playing. No officer was called and the man walked away. No one knew him.

AGAINST STATE OR THE UNION?

(By Associated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 6.—The application of John A. Benson for a bill of particulars in the case of the alleged fraudulent acquisition of lands in Tehama county, was denied and the demurrer overruled by United States District Judge De Haven this morning.

W. S. Wood, representing E. B. Perrin, indicted with Benson, made the somewhat startling argument, for which the prosecutors were unprepared, that if fraud had been perpetrated at all, it had been against the state of California and not the United States government.

United States District Attorney Devlin, in replying to this, held that the fraud had been perpetrated on the United States indirectly, and declared tha tthe government was determined to defeat any conspiracy to acquire lands fraudulently and that the fact of the plot alleged against Benson and Perrin included in its details the use of the state of California as an instrument in the fraudulent acquisition of title to what was federal land did not put Benson and Perrin out of the jurisdiction of the federal court.

The ruling of Judge De Haven approved the indictment and the case will go to trial Thursday morning.

HAU INNOCENT WITNESS SAYS

Man Appears Who Asserts That He Saw Shooting of Frau Molitor Last November.

DID NOT SHOW UP AT TRIAL

Friend for American Professor of Roman Law at Washington Convicted of Murder.

(Associated Press Special Cable)

MANNHEIM, Aug. 6.—A witness has come forward to declare that Karl Hau, the former professor of Roman law at George Washington University, Washington, D. C., who was found guilty July 27, and was sentenced to death, is in reality innocent of the crime.

The name of this new witness is Karl Lingenau and his statement has created a sensation. He says that at the time of the murder last November he was walking behind Frau Molitor and her daughter. He saw the flash of a pistol and saw one of the women fall. He did not see the murderer, but says he could not possibly have been Hau.

During the trial Lingenau forwarded anonymously a statement containing these assertions to Hau, but he did not appear at the trial because of his desire to conceal, for private reasons, his presence in Karsruhe.

FALLON WANTS TO HAVE PROTECTION FROM FIRE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal)

FALLON, Aug 6.—A determined effort is being put forth to establish some means of fire protection for Fallon In less than a month there have been two fires here and in both instances a general conflagration was averted only by the promptness of bucket brigades aided by the fact that no wind was blowing. Both fires were in hotels in the heart of the business district and had high winds, which are almost a daily condition here, been prevailing, it is believed the town would have been doomed.

Almost every building is of frame. The stone and brick structures on the main street could be counted on the fingers of one hand. The insurance rate, because of the absence of even the simplest appliances for fighting fire, is practically prohibitive—so much so that scarcely a property owner in the town could carry full insurance, even if the fire underwriters would issue such a policy, which they will not, under existing conditions. The present rate runs as high as $10 on $100, and in no case, except brick and stone buildings, does it go below $6.50.

A "fire fund" has been started and a subscription list is being circulated among the citizens for the purpose of raising sufficient money to purchase a fir eengine and hose carriage and possibly a hook and ladder. To aid this fund the Fallon Dramatic Club made up of the most prominent young folks in social life here, gave an entertainment and dance on Saturday night, which netted the "fire fund" about $150.

LOST BULLION TRIAL BEGINS

Fabulously Rich Mine Declared by Federal Inspectors to Be an Unmitigated Fraud

"ANCIENT WORKINGS" A CAVE

Dying Indian Who Revealed Secret Pronounced by Government to Be a Moss-Covered Fake

(By Associated Press.)

DENVER, Aug. 6.—Taking of testimony in the Lost Bullion Spanish Mines Company case, which began yesterday, was continued today. The Lost Bullion Spanish Mines Company has been in existence since October 1, 1906, when the promoters placed original stock on the market.

They said they had a mine of fabulous richness near Silver City, N. M., which was worked by the Spaniards under Cortez, in 1600, had been sealed up by the Spaniards when they were driven away by the Indians, and had never been re-located until 1906. Interesting circulars were sent all over the country by the promoters and they are said to have reaped a harvest of fully $80,000 from the working people of the country.

The men under indictment are C. L Blackman ,A. E. Keables, R. C. Hunt, Arthur Levan, D. H. Lawrence, D. P. Pinkus and Edward Sebben, of Denver; and W. B. Cameron, of Boulder, Colo., and George S. and Lee Dubers, formerly of Silver City, and now of Littleton, Colo.

The trial is expected to develop some sensational testimony, as the United States inspectors declare that the alleged "workings" are nothing but the natural windings and twists of a common cave. The story that a dying Indian had in gratitude revealed the secret, the inspectors say is as ancient as the hills and is wholly untrue because there never was any such Indian. The government declares that the whole scheme was an unmitigated fraud from the beginning.

RENO, NEV., WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 7, 1907

With the prohibition law in full force, there's mighty few people who will care to do much Marching Through Georgia.

Those Frisco lawyers who had a fist-fight in court yesterday might be signed for one of the preliminaries in the next big ring attraction. This is a hint for Jim May.

If they actually get oil, in paying quantities, in the drilling west of town, just you watch the S. P. rates on coal take a tumble. Nothing so effective as a little real competition.

A gasoline motor car, running on rails, has beat the time of an overland limited train. Not a feat deserving of much mention, as Renoites who travel on the Overland Limited can attest.

May Yohe, of checkered career and many names, who was dispossessed in New York the other day, asserts that the rumor that she is the worst woman in the world is all a mistake. How mightily have we all been fooled.

What is the real status of the Reno police force, when the county sheriff has to intervene to clean out and break up a notorius negro dive, where crime has been a pastime and depravity a practice? Hereafter, why not spell it s-Leeper?

The monument which has been suggested as a testimonial of Reno's appreciation of the Southern Pacific railroad's friendship and generosity towards the city might with entire propriety be modeled in the form of a "Black Hand."

The neck-and-neck race for the senatorship, which he ran with John Sharp Williams, promises to divert the Governor of Mississippi's thoughts from their favorite theme, the hamstringing of all the negroes in the world. That will relieve the tension a little bit.

"Man is but the guest of the Creator on the earth for a few days, takes his leave through the back door, to make room for those who stand waiting in the vestibule of existence," says the Baltimore American. Very pretty, but hardly true. Most of us go out by the way of the cellar. At least the cellar is in the direction of our destination.

The silence that is heard in the neighborhood of Oyster Bay these days is ominous. There's generally a calm before a storm, and the nature fakirs, trust and railroad magnates and a few million members of the Roosevelt Ananias Club would do well to get their cyclone cellars in readiness.

Oil Near Reno

While it may be a little early to declare positively that oil has been struck near Reno, all the signs indicate that this news may be announced authentically before many days. The drill which is working west of the city is in an oil-bearing formation, and the indications are so strong that a strike will be made that those who are behind the project are justified in being highly elated.

Should it come about that a "gusher" is developed in the work now in progress, there will be no further question about Reno's future. The city will grow by leaps and bounds, and there will be such an infusion of new life and new capital as will place Reno well up in the list of leading cities among the commonwealths. Oil will make any city. What it has done for western Pennsylvania towns, for West Virginia, and for the Lima, Ohio, district are matters of ancient history. The great growth and development of southeastern Kansas, and of the district around Bakersfield, Cal., of more recent occurrence, demonstrate that the potentialities of petroleum have not lapsed, albeit the industry has expanded enormously since "Coal Oil Johnnie" was writing his name on the scroll of the famously foolish.

Conditions attending Reno are peculiarly adapted to the full exercise of these potentialities. There is a great state here to be supplied with fuel; and oil as a fuel is unexcelled. There is room here for refineries that can find their markets at their very doors, and there is an opportunity to transform Reno into a thoroughly metropolitan city should the hopes that are now so high not be dashed.

One thing, however. Should these expectations be realized, and oil found as the drill which is now working goes to depth, Reno should make it her business to see that the benefits of the discovery are preserved for her own enjoyment, and for the enjoyment of the thousands who will be attracted by the first authentic news.

Standard Oil should be kept out of the district, and the independence which is going to be made possible by the course the federal government is pursuing, preserved.

Again the Southern Pacific

The news which developed yesterday that the Commercial League has telegraphed to Spokane for the transcript of the record in the fight which that city is making against the railroad monopoly which holds it as Reno is held by the S. P., is cheering. It indicates that the civic organization to which the city must look for protection against the transportation ills from which it suffers, may shortly be actively engaged in the work of trying to better existing conditions.

Spokane's case is almost identical with that of Reno. It is similarly situated, and its merchants are the victims of competition from coast cities. This competition is used to place against Spokane freight rates similar to those charged against Reno. That is, the merchants there are compelled to pay a rate, on in-bound goods from the east, equivalent to the cost of the haul from Spokane through to the coast and back again. And against competition by Seattle and Tacoma, it is denied a distributing rate which will enable it to put its wares in the markets tributary to it on a cost-equality with its competitors.

But Spokane has attacked the situation from a different direction from that adopted in Reno. There has been no soft-pedaling against the monopoly, no supplicating for favors. The Washington city tired of that long ago. And tiring of it, the business people of Spokane raised a substantial fund, employed Brooks Adams, a Boston attorney who has had large experience in fighting railroad deviltry, and who has practiced extensively before the Interstate Commerce Commission. Mr. Adams prepared the Spokane case, and has argued it before the Commission, hauling the northwestern roads before the body which has power to grant relief on the ground of gross discrimination.

Spokane's demand is for an intermediate terminal rate, or, in other words, to be placed on a similar footing in the railroad tariffs with Denver and Salt Lake. She asks the Commission to rule that the rate for the haul to the coast and back again is unjust and discriminatory, and, also, asks to be granted a rate which will allow her business men to do business on a basis at least as good as that which Seattle and Tacoma occupy.

The coast cities have intervened in the suit, and are insisting that the preference they now enjoy be preserved. And the railroads, in fighting Spokane's demands, take the position that the preferential rates granted the coast cities are necessary to enable the railroads to compete with water transportation; that is, with the movement of freight from the east via the Isthmus of Panama. The claim that this competition is real is the veriest rot. Rates from New York via the Isthmus are virtually the same as the rates all-rail. And with the government owning the only line of steamers operating between eastern ports and the Atlantic side of the Isthmus, there is no competition for traffic. The whole procedure, and the attitude of the railroads, is identical with the Southern Pacific's resistance to Reno's demands—a ruse by the railroad to preserve the privilege it now enjoys of collecting freight for a haul of 500 miles which it does not make.

Spokane's suit before the Interstate Commerce Commission so nearly embodies all of the features that Reno might present to that body, that Reno should help herself, and help Spokane, by instituting similar proceedings. That this may be done is indicated by the action of the Commercial League in asking for the Spokane record. While time may not permit Reno to prepare a completed case before the Spokane decision is rendered, there is ample time for the Commercial League to prepare a complaint against the Southern Pacific, and make a fair presentation of facts, so that the Commission, in considering the Spokane case, may have before it evidence that the evils of which the Washington city complain are practiced elsewhere, and that they are serious enough to require prompt remedial action.

To such a course, the Commercial League may well devote itself, for through it, Reno will be the gainer.

Teachers' Salaries

When the idle are away on their vacations and the teachers in the public schools are forced to take their rest, we who remain behind to work through habit or circumstance, are reminded of the unsatisfactory life these teachers have to lead. Ambition at the beginning is killed in them. No matter what a Hadley or an Angell may say of the undesirability of existence for mere wealth, the fact that the teachers do not get paid enough for their services to the community leaves them a helpless burden at the end of their period of usefulness. And their days of action—of energy—are marked with the thought of the ceaseless improvement in character and mind they must make, but with no return for increasing worth, except perhaps, the limited salary (if the teacher be a woman) of $125 a month.

Years of study, money spent in scholastic training, bring the instructor to the place where he or she may get a position. When once that place is obtained, the employers—the school trustees and the boards of education—demand that the standard of culture shall never drop. Resultant of this, the small savings of the winter are expended in educational travel in the summer or in attending university summer school. Properly, the teacher is made to be present at institutes. Properly, too, the teacher must pay his or her own expenses while engaged in attendance on the institutes. The outcome, even with the best in the profession, is a paltry pay that makes the big school principal blush to admit his vocation when discussing finances with friends.

A remedy for this should be found. Competency is procured with money. The standard of the instructorships in the schools should be maintained, but it cannot be when the brightest members of the faculties are tempted into less desirable work for greater wages. The education that fits a teacher for his place should be regarded as an asset worth its first price, and the men elected to choose the qualified should make their employment an inducement for long service.

PUBLIC OPINION

THE VETO POWER

(Chicago Tribune.)

Jeremy Bentham speaks of an "incoherent and undigested mass of law, shot down, as from a rubbish cart, upon the heads of the people." This is a fairly accurate summary of the work of the American legislature, from New York to Texas via Illinois. Bad, crude and unnecessary laws make up a large part of the output of every session. The veto power was given Governors that they might stand between the people and vicious or hasty legislation. Roughly speaking, the Governor who vetoes the most bills is the best Governor. When a Governor vetoes none the legitimate presumption is, not that the work of the legislature was flawless, but that he was timid, not daring to oppose ignorant popular sentiment or to array special interests against himself—or that he had not sense enough to recognize a bad measure when he saw it.

During the last regular session of the New York legislature Governor Hughes vetoed 37 bills and 197 others were recalled because he let it be known he intended to veto them. At the close of the session he had 450 bills to pass on. He withheld his signature from 250 of these. Probably he would have liked to rewrite many of those he did sign so that they might express more clearly the legislative to the cause of the murder of the courts.

So liberal a use of the veto power is unusual. There are many members of the legislature who are sore because their little special bills have been killed, but the people ought to be thankful that they have been saved from a mass of unwise and dishonest legislation. Here and there the governor may have made a mistake, and the judgment of the legislature may have been sane; than his, but even admitting all that, he proved himself a wise and fearless censor of legislation. Every state needs one, but there are many in which the people have failed to elect one.

Theodore W. Richards, professor of chemistry at Harvard university, who is one of the exchange professors with the University of Berlin, has closed his lectures at Berlin and will return to America at once.

Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney has joined the artists' colony in Macdougal Alley, New York, and has taken a stable in the neighborhood, which she expects to fit up as a sculptor's studio on her return from Europe, where she is now traveling.

Mrs. Harcourt, the wife of "the baby of the cabinet," as the English term Lewis Vernon Harcourt, otherwise and commonly called "Lulu" Harcourt, was Miss Mary Ethel Burns, the only daughter of the late Walter Burns of New York, and a niece of Burns o fNew York, and a niece of J. Pierpont Morgan.

King Edward carries a gold key that has no duplicate. It opens his private writing desk. Every time the King leaves his personal apartment an assistant secretary destroys the contents of the waste-basket, the blotting pads and even the wrappers of the newspapers that come from every capital of Europe. His majesty takes no risks of spying eyes, and it is an unwritten law that private secretaries shall not indulge in gossipy diaries, after the manner of Samuel Pepys.

FRENCH LED BY BRAVE ENSIGN FIGHT MOORS

Five marines and the ensign were wounded. The ensign was shot through both hands.

Wounded Ensign Orders Charge.

In spite of his injuries, however, he ordered his men to fix bayonets and charge. This the Frenchmen did and in the fighting 150 Moors lost their lives. The marines continued their way, clearing the ground of the enemy as they went, until they reached the French consulate, where French citizens in Casa Blanca had taken refuge. The other European residents had sought safety at their respective consulates.

In the meantime the French cruiser Galilee had commenced shelling the native villages outside of Casa Blanca, to prevent armed Arabs from entering the city. The shells could be seen ploughing up the earth and killing men and horses. At 11 o'clock in the morning the French cruiser Du Chayla arrived. She had been in wireless communication with the Galilee, and as she steamed in her gunners were at their stations. Broadside on the beach, she opened fire with melinite shells on the horsemen and natives on foot who were in the marketplace to the east of the town. The horsemen were riding madly in circles.

Landing Party Fired on.

The Du Chayla also sent a party ashore under Commander Manguin. As they were landing the men were subjected to a fire from a Moorish force under command of the Marabout Sidi Belout, but the rapid fire guns in the bows of the French launches cleared the ground for the sailors, who made the shore expeditiously. They scaled the walls of the Portugese consulate and reached the French consulate under cover of the guns of the marines already there. Marabout Sidi Belout was wounded.

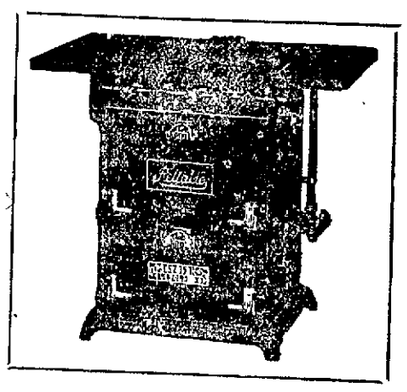

A party of 30 men were landed from a Spanish cruiser, but this vessel did not take part in the bombardment.

JIM MAY STILI CONFIDENT THAT RENO GETS IT

Athletic Club President Returned Yesterday from San Franciso after Seeing Promoters

Jim May returned last evening from San Francisco where, on Monday, he made a flat bid of $35,000 for the championship fight between Gans and Britt, to be held on Labor Day in this city. Articles for the fight were signed by Gans and Britt after the bids for the battle, submitted by Jack Gleason, Jimmy Coffroth and Jim May had been opened. They provide that the men must fight before September 30, and contain a provision that in the event either one fights and is defeated prior to their engagement, he must forfeit $2500 to the other.

This provision was inserted in the agreement to cover the possibility of Gans being vanquished by Jimmy Burns when the two men meet at Los Angeles on the 16th. Each man posted a forfeit of $2500 for his appearance in the ring, when the articles were signed, and their managers will meet again this evening to decide which bid shall be accepted, and where the fight shall take place.

Mr. May had no further information about the progress of the negotiations than was contained in The Journal of yesterday, having left San Francisco early in the morning. He is, however, still confident that his offer will prove the winning one, as Ben Selig, Gans' manager, takes the position that he will not permit his man to fight except for a guaranteed purse, and May's offer is the only one which carries a flat offer, all the others being on the basis of a percentage of the gate.

TOMMY BURNS AT THE HIPPODROME THIS WEEK

Tommy Burns, the Canadian fighter who made an ex-champion of Squires, champion of Australia, in short order, will appear at the Hippodrome on Saturday and Sunday evenings. Manager Siebeck received a dispatch yesterday saying that everything had been arranged and the champion would come willingly.

Burns is the champion pugilist of the world. His defeat of Philadelphia Jack O'Brien at Los Angeles won him the fight with Squires, who had come to America from Australia heralded as the real thing. Squires hardly realized that he was in the ring before he was out.

Burns is not a Hercules, like Jeffries, but is a clean-built, clever boxer—a perfect athlete. He has always liked Reno, where he has many acquaintances, and was glad to be able to arrange for his appearance here.

AMATEUR NEARLY SWIMS THE CHANNEL

(Associated Press Special Cable)

DOVER, England, Aug. 6.—Jabez Wolffe, the amateur swimmer, in a fifth attempt to swim the English channel, today had accomplished a record swim from the South Foreland, getting within three-quarters of a mile of Cape Blanc, France, in the fast time of 15 1-2 hours, when the turn of the tide carried him away from the land and necessitated the relinquishment of his attempt.

AMATEUR GOLF BY WESTERN CHAMPIONS

WHEATON, Ill., Aug. 6.—More than 80 golfers drove off today in the qualifying round in the Western Amateur golf championship. The links of the Chicago Gold Club, over which many national and sectional championships have been decided, were in perfect shape for play, and with fair weather conditions, low scores were made.

The field of entrants this year is a wide one, players being present from Atlanta, Ga., Denver, Birmingham, Nashville and including the title-holder, Ned Sawyer, Warren K. Wood, who played such a sensational game at Cleveland against Jerome Travers, and Walter Fairbanks, of Denver.

The qualifying round today in which 32 qualified and the first round at match play tomorrow will be at 36 holes. The subsequent rounds of match play will be at 18 holes to the finals on Saturday, which will be at 36 holes.

National Rowing Regatta.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 6.—The annual regata of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen will be held on the Schuylkill river Friday and Saturday. Among those here is Waldemar Sands, a sculler from Berlin, Germany.

Notice

Woodmen of the world will meet at Manning Hall this afternoon at 1:30 to attend the funeral of our friend and neighbor, J. A. Meffley. By order

ED. WILLIAMS, Clerk.

ARBITRATION COURT IS NOW ASSURED

(Associated Press Special Cable)

THE HAGUE, Aug. 6.—Johesph H. Choate and James Brown Scott of the American delegation to the peace conference spent the entire day today conferring with leading delegates about the American proposition for the establishment of a permanent court of arbitration at The Hague which is to come up for discussion tomorrow before a special committee. The institution of a permanent court is now considered definitely assured, even if the difficulty arising from the appointment of the judges should prevent the adhesion of some of the smaller countries, the court will be established by the great powers. America and Great Britain alone having enough cases to present to keep the court busy for several years. The influence and the reputation of the court through its sentences, it is believed, will gradually attract the countries which might refrain from taking part in its establishment.

SETTLERS FLEE BEFORE FIRE IN THE FOREST

(By Associated Press)

SEATTLE, Aug. 6.—Forest fires threaten to sweep every stick of standing timber from Camano Island. Fire broke out Wednesday of last week and now three fires are sweeping back and forth as the wind varies.

The Camano Lumber Company lost 2,000,000 feet of cedar and three-quarters of a mile of railroad, valued at $50000. The other heavy loser on the island will be the Puget Sound Mills & Timber Company.

Settlers have been obliged to vacate their homes on short notice. One man, George Roop, saved his furniture only by burying it in an old well. The fire is near the town of Camano, a place of about 300 inhabitants, and threatens some homes near the town. Camano itself has fire protection.

Another bad fire is reported on the southern end of Whidby Island. The Hewlett's logging camp was destroyed at taht place.

"You would make a good target."

He then fired five shots, one piercing Purposa's abdomen and the other his hip. Gonvales fled from the police and escaped.

MINES BUILDING ROW HAS QUIETED DOWN

Eugene Schuler, contractor for the Mackay mining building at the state university, has experienced a change of heart. Since the controversy arose between him and L. D. Bliss and Dr. Stubbs, Mr. Schuler has been persistent in his determination to recognize no other authority than that of Clarence Mackay himself. Mr. Bliss, the representative of McKim, Mead & White, the architects entrusted by the donor of the building to prepare the plans and superintend the construction, was met with opposition. So was Dr. Stubbs, the head of the university, the trouble culminating when the latter put a force of men to work to tear down the walls.

Yesterday Schuler got a letter from Mr. Bliss in San Francisco regarding cement to be used in the construction and has decided to go ahead with the work. There is now plenty of stone and cement on the ground and after the brick work that was adjudged faulty is remedied, it is expected that the work will be pushed without interruption. The authority of Mr. Bliss has been acknowledged by Mr. Schuler.

CONSOLIDATED NOT RESPONSIVE

So Far the Coming Dividend Has No Reflection in the Quotations.

CHEAPER STOCKS FEEL CURRENT

Condition of the Market Is Strong and Very Satisfactory Generally.

Evidently the public has either not heard of the proposed action of the Consolidated Mines Company to pay a dividend in the near future, or is skeptical. At all events the price of the stock so far is not in keeping with the flat promise of an early dividend.

The cheaper stocks have, however, commenced to feel the strong upward movement which is daily expected, and have commenced to move up accordingly.

The market yesterday showed much activity, and altogether, a very satisfactory condition, all along the line of the Goldfields.

LABOR TROUBLE NOW SETTLED

Seven Troughs District Will Now Be More Active Than Ever.

WATER SUPPLY IS ASSURED

Preparations Are Being Made for Erection of a 10-Stamp Mill.

(By RAY D. HARRIS.)

(Special Dispatch to the Journal)

VERNON (Seven Troughs District), Nev., August 6.—With the labor trouble, which caused an almost general shutdown of the properties for the last month, practically settled, the Seven Troughs district is again a center of great activity, and it is apparent that the country will experience a healthy and substantial growth during the coming fall months. Nearly all the mines have resumed operations, and within the next few weeks the number of miners at work will be three or four times greater than ever before. Notwithstanding the recent cessation of operations, the towns of the district, namely, Vernon, Seven Troughs, Mazuma and Farrell, experienced no set back, and today they are all more flourishing and prosperous than at any time since they came into existence.

The one object which has been somewhat of a hindrance to the growth of Vernon—insufficient water supply—has been completely overcome. In the valley lying to the east, and within two miles of the town, a great underground flow of water has been tapped in a well sunk by Carl Bach and associates, of Vernon. From the bottom of a 75-foot hole they sank a 2-inch auger and casing. At a depth of about 140 feet the flow of water was caught, and as greater depth was gained it improved in volume. The owners of the well are now sinking a six-inch casing and within a short time they will be pumping sufficient water to supply a town of at least 5000 people and a 100-stamp mill.

At the Fairview mine, the property of the Seven Troughs Mining Company, a force of workmen are now employed in getting things ready for a resumption of operations on a larger scale than ever. A pipe line is being laid to the mine from a spring, about an eighth of a mile distant, where ther has already been developed more than sufficient water for the proposed 10-stamp mill, the construction of which will begin immediately. "Change rooms" are being built, as well as a bath room.

A complete electric lighting apparatus is being installed, and as soon as the wiring of the shaft and the various stations is finished the work of sinking from the present 360-foot level to a depth of 500 feet will begin. When this depth is attained, cross-cutting, stoping and drifting on the various levels will be prosecuted with all possible vigor. Large and regular shipments of ore will then be made, as the permanency of the two big ledges, carrying high-grade, shipping and milling rock, has been proven from the surface to the 360-foot level, and indications warrant the prediction that they will continue to a much greater depth.

Work preliminary to the installation of a 40-horse-power gasoline hoist, to be used in sinking a three-compartment shaft to a depth of 400 feet, is being executed on the property of the Seven Troughs Kindergarten Mining Company. Miners are also again in their places in the main shaft, drifts and winzes of the mine. At the present the deepest working in this property is the main shaft, which is down about 100 feet on an 18-inch stringer of high-grade ore in the big ledge, the permanency of which is shown for the entire depth of the shaft.

Up to this time the development work on the property of the Seven Troughs Therein Company has been confined to the operations of about a dozen sets of leasers, some of whom have at present excellent showings, but in the future, the company, which recently passed into the control of L. A. Friedman, the biggest operator in the district, and associates, will take a big hand in the opening up of the ground. The company will begin operations in the immediate future, and a shaft will be sunk to great depth. At present preliminary arrangements are being made for the erection of a 10-stamp mill on the ground.

A strike of considerable importance was recently made on the lease owned by Loftus and Davis, the Goldfield operators, on the Therein ground. The tunnel on the lease, which is now in about 150 feet, has cut through a ledge, measuring about 120 feet in width, that gives averaging milling values of $11 to $15 a ton. Several stringers, giving shipping values aroud $50 a ton, show up in the big ledge.

The Mazuma Hills Mining Company has become a shipper. Within the last few days a shipment of twenty-five tons of high-grade ore was sent to the Salt Lake smelters. It is stated that the ore will run several hundred dollars a ton. It was extracted in driving the two tunnels by which the property is being developed.

Operations have again been started on the property of the Seven Troughs Buckhorn company, adjoining the town of Vernon on the north. A 15-horse-power gasoline hoist is being put in place at the vertical shaft, which has a depth of 135 feet, and a whim is being used on the incline shaft, which is down 145 feet. Both shafts will be sunk to a depth of at least 250 feet before any great amount of cross-cutting or drifting is begun.

LITIGATION ON IN MANHATTAN

Famous Case Has Reached State Supreme Court and Is Not Complete

INJUNCTION IS ASKED FOR

Disputed Property Was Located in July Two Years Ago

The Litigation hill case from Manhattan, one of the hardest fought cases ever in the courts of Nevada, has reached the supreme court and is set for hearing on August 12. The case has attracted more attention, probably, than any mining case in the state and has been in the courts for almost two years. At present the title of the case is, A. D. Nash, A. G. Raycraft, T. L. Oddie, E. Sutro, Manhattan Union Mining Company, Manhattan Dexter Mining Company of Nevada versus Dan McNamara, George Brieger, William Davidson and Con McFadden.

According to the story told it appears that the property consists of some rich claims in Manhattan and located on what is known as Litigation hill. On July 1, 1905, three men named Copenhaver, Meissener and Lawson located the property. Twenty days later, it is alleged, A. A. Nash and his associates located the property over the trio's location. The three men failed to perform the required work in 90 days and on the nineteenth day Dan McNamara, George Brieger, Davidson and McFadden located the property and began work. In October of that year Nash and associates secured an injunction to prevent them from working the property. Later the case was taken to the federal court and remanded from there back to the state court. Last summer the case was heard by Judge Breen at Tonopah and in February of this year he granted Nash and associates a perpetual injunction against the defendants, preventing them from doing any work on the property. Nash and associates then continued to work on the property and are now taking ore from the claims.

McNamara, Brieger, Davidson and McFadden now ask for a dissolution of the injunction against them and further that Nash and associates be prevented from further work on the property.—Bonanza.

MEXICAN MINERS ARE BEST IN THE WORLD

Peons Need a Few Cheering Words and Encouragement

"The Mexican makes the best miner in the world," said E. S. Moffat, an operator for the Butters Company, when he passed through Reno on his way from Virginia City to Sinaloa. "The peon works for half the wage of the Pennsylvania coal miner, and he produces results. This talk about the Mexican doing only half the work of the American in return for the low pay he receives is foolish. All the native of Sinaloa needs is encouragement. A few cheering words and a display of enthusiasm by the superintendent will make him labor as if work were pleasant."

Moffat has been all over the world as a mining engineer. When he left Columbia University, he started in the stone quarries near Buffalo to put to use his knowledge of geology, and since that time he has visited South Africa, New Zealand, Alaska, Montana, Chili, Mexico, Peru and Nevada.

So favorably impresed with the conditions prevailing on the Buckhorn property is Captain C. W. Rose, of Goldfield, that he has secured leases on two blocks of ground. Captain Rose operated the Rose Mohawk lease on the famous Mohawk property in Goldfield.

Extensive development work will soon be started on the property of the Seven Troughs Daisy Mining Company, which recently took over the interests of the Seven Troughs Vernon Mining Company. The ground owned by the Seven Troughs Daisy Company adjoins the Buckhorn property on the south, and has a remarkable showing. The officers of the new company are: President, Van Spaulding of Goldfield; vice president, W. J. Craig; secretary, R. W. Gnekow; treasurer, W. F. Adams; directors, Jacob Evans, E. H. Airis and Brigham Cannon, all of Salt Lake City.

The Seven Troughs Gold Cord Mining Company has been organized by Salt Lake capitalists for the development of the Gold Cord group at the mouth of Seven Troughs canyon, it having been purchased from W. F. McNelley and associates. Mr McNeeley is general manager of the company and is preparing to begin operations in the near future.

Phenomenal pannings have been obtained in the last few days in the bottom of the 90-foot shaft on the Red Top claim owned by Nickerson, Peterson and associates, and lying west of the Buckhorn property. Out of a half-filled small frying pan of talc and quartz, a heaping teaspoonful of gold was extracted in one panning recently. The shaft, which was sunk on a four-foot ledge, has panned all the way from the surface to the present depth, and the claim bears every earmark of becoming a bonanza.

People are wanted to come to the Busy Bee on Virginia street and examine the F. P. Gas Machine. Something entirely new and cheap. The best, safest and cheapest light on earth. George Goode, agent. Phone 126. J31w

DUTCH CREEK STRIKE PROVED

Area of Placer Ground Is Daily Being Proven Larger Than Supposed.

LOTS OF COARSE GOLD FOUND

Some of the Ground Prospected Goes as High as $5 to the Pan.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal)

DUTCH CREEK, Nev., Aug. 6.—The phenomenally rich placer strike near Dutch Creek is proving richer than the greatest expectations and the area of the valuable territory of a much larger extent than at first thought, as locations are being made in the gulches in the vicinity of the original strike, ground is being uncovered that far surpasses the original strike itself. Dutch Creek has gone wild over the discovery and it is impossible to beg, barrow, or steal a horse, prospectors are rushing in from all sections and large amounts are being offered for even small portions of claims. Rockers of every description are being constructed. In two days rocking Messrs Mahaffey, McCoy and Witcher took out over three hundred dollars in nuggets ranging from the size of a shot to a 1c cent piece. H. L. Gleason, A. V. Warnekros and Joe Hanlon have exceptionally rich ground that goes as high as $5 to the pan.

Sam Bayles, Jack Scroggins and G. Wilcox yesterday had a clean-up of the day's work that went nearly two hundred dollars.

The launches crossing to Dutch Creek, the outfitting point, are kept busy carrying prospectors from the railroad to Dutch Creek and experts on the ground, judging from the richness and extent of the new diggings give it as their opinion that many thousands will be added to the already large output of Nevada's gold.

DUZETTE GROUP SOLD BY STEELE TO SNYDERS WHO MAKE PAYMENT

The Ely Standard Copper Company, which is controlled by the Snyders and associates, has added to its Lane City possessions by the purchase of the Duzette group of five claims from John A. Steele and R. A. Riepe. Upon the arrival of Willard F. and Grant Synder tomorrow evening, it is expected that the first payment will be tendered to the owners of the ground. The Duzette group lies at the eastern end of their present holdings.

Two men were placed at work on this property today, and in a few days more systematic work will be instituted. The Gold Standard claim will be the first scene of activity, and as the existence of sulphide ore has already been determined through shafts and tunnels, a point on this claim has been selected for starting a new shaft.

It was the original intention of the directors to prospect this group with churn drills, but Willard Snyder soon put a puletus on that proposition. He reasoned that a churn drill might drive a hole 500 feet deep, and then miss a rich body only a few feet. He also claimed that after a churn drill has been the means of discovering ore, that a shaft would have to be sunk ultimately to bring the ore to the surface.

A whim will be installed on the Gold Standard shaft that will be started a few days after the arrival of the Snyders, and when a sufficient depth has been attained the whim will be superceded by a modern hoisting plant. The shaft will be sunk to the 500-foot level. The Ely Standard, like other Ely companies, is suffering from a shortage of miners.—Expositor.

SACK FAMINE IN FAIRVIEW

Nevada Hills Sacking High-Grade in Large Quantities and Daily Adding Men.

THEY ARE USING FLOUR SACKS

Jarvis Lease Said to Have Found Nevada Hills Main Rich Ore Shoot.

C. J. Allison, who arrived from Fairvew yesterday, tells an interesting story relative to the sack famine in its connection with the recent strike in the Nevada Hills.

"I do not know how many thousand tons of ore there is sacked on the Nevada Hills ground," said Mr. Allison, "and I would not like to make a guess. I know that it is stacked up breast high for a long way, and the piles are very deep.

"There is one thing about much of that sacked ore that I suppose not many people ever saw before. That is that much of it is put up in flour and sugar sacks, or any other old kind of sacks that could be found. There are no ore sacks left in the country. The Nevada Hills Company has bought every sack of every description it could lay its hands on, and is still doing the same thing in order to sack all the high-grade possible.

"A few days ago when I was there the company was working 90 men, and just as fast as room could be made for another man he was put on, as the company is making every effort to get out all the ore possible.

"I got some good news from there today, but as this has not yet been verified I do not care to go into particulars, but I just heard that a big ledge of high-grade had been found in the Jarvis lease, in which I am interested.

"The word that I received from there was to the effect that a very rich ledge ,the same in character as that being worked in the Nevada Hills, has been uncovered, and that there is some reason for believing that it is the same ledge, as the place where it is said to have been encountered is only about 300 feet from where it is being worked by the Nevada Hills Company, and to the southeast in line with it if it did not change its direction.

"The ledge leads right toward the Dromedary Hump property."

Stops earache in two minutes, toothache or pain of burn or scald in five minutes; hoarseness, one hour; muscleache, two hours; sore throat twelve hours—Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, monarch over pain.

HIKE IS THE NAME OF THE NEW TOWN TO BE BUILT NEAR WONDER

"Hike" is the name of a new town which it is expected will soon be in existence in Eleven Mile Canyon, about 18 miles due west of Wonder. For some time there has been a party of prospectors working on a property over there, and as they were satisfied that they had a mine, they had intended to keep the matter quiet and tell only their friends, so as to have a community of their own, first, and then let in the outsiders. The original discoverers of the new diggings were Messrs. Baker, a brother of W. A. Baker of this place, and a Mr. Ericson. They have sunk a shaft on the ledge of the original find to the depth of 30 feet, and indications point to the opening of a great ore body. Assays from the shaft show values from $250 down to $10. During the week the secret of the existence of the diggings filtered through the shell, and got as far as Wonder, and a rush to the new El Dorado began instantly.

Dr R. P. Barnard of this place has secured an agreement with the locator of the mining ground at the mouth of the canyon, and has given the name of "Hike" to the new diggings. He says that after his experience in getting there, climbing up mountains, and then climbing right down again, he was unable to find a word in his somewhat extended vocabulary which was any more appropriate for a cognomen for the place.

John Tate, the mining engineer, also had difficulty in finding the location of the new diggings. He and his party were about 12 hours making the 18 miles, having started early in the morning and arrived at the spring in the canyon about dark.

J. H. Tate, Harold Kjelsberg and Mr. McPherson made a rush to the new diggings Wednesday, and succeeded in getting eight claims and a millsite. On the millsite is a splendid spring of water, which, in this country, is not to be sneezed at.

The waters in the springs in Eleven Mile canyon carry sulphuretted hydrogen, and when one has been using too much snake-bite remedy it is well not to drink too much of it, as the water and whiskey are quarrelsome when mixed together in a tight place.

George Fredell went over to the new diggings and secured a couple of locations He was gone a day and a half, and on his return said that he was hungry, having only had a can of beans to eat during the trip He was also somewhat soiled, and slightly sunburned.—Wonder News.

A DAY OF SALES IN WALL STREET

By Noon Yesterday Dealings Had Passed the Aggregate for All the Previous Day.

WHO ARE THE UNLOADERS?

Silver Drops a Quarter of a Cent—Copper Has a Marked Decline in London.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The dealings in stocks by noon today had passed the figure of the aggregate for the whole of yesterday. A weak and unsettled market and an active selling movement furnished the explanation of the increase in the animation of dealings. There were various features in the day's news which were given responsibility for the discouraged speculative sentiment.

More direct interest was shown, in the immediate vicinity of the stock exchange, in the identity of large sellers of stocks, as promising to give a clew to the motives and the standing and influence of the sellers, but they were not discovered. That there was no important buying was a self-evident fact. The aggressive or urgent selling which developed late in yesterday's market and continued over today was a new feature of the market and gave occasion to anxiety on the part of bidders on stocks on margins.

Seek News From Abroad.

Newly returned tourists from abroad, where important financial missions were supposed to be an object, were subjected to gossip and conjecture regarding the selling. A number of last week's late arrivals of this element are men in the front rank of capitalists, and are supposed to be also active in stock market operations. Conferences were said to have occurred with bankers and other interests at which the foreign situation was canvassed and which had been followed by the selling movement in the stock market.

The Standard Oil fine is regarded as a forerunner of other suits against various corporations which will be prompted by the example of that case. Possible prosecution against the railroad officials concerned in that case was discussed. The series of measures directed against railroads in a group of the southern states fed the apprehension felt by market operators upon the subject.

A further decline in the price of copper in London and at the New York metal exchange was a factor in the weakness. So was the engagement of $500,000 in gold for shipment to Holland. The continent of Europe was an active bidder for gold in the London market also and took $2,500,000 of the sum available against the $500,000 secured at the Bank of England. Private discounts rose in London. The weekly bulletin of the weather bureau was not regarded as entirely satisfactory as to crop conditions in part of the wheat belt and for the cotton belt.

Rates for time money continued to advance and little was offered except for foreign and out-of-town bankers. The shorts took profit before the day was over and worked a substantial rally, but it was all lost again and the market closed weak.

LABOR'S DAY PROCLAIMED

Governor Sparks Says Intention Is to Honor All Pursuits and Recognize Capital

APPEAL MADE FOR HARMONY

People Invited to Observe the Occasion by "Discussing Conditions in a Dispassionate Way"

Governor Sparks has issued his Labor Day proclamation for September 3.

No mention is directly made of the differences between labor and capital in Reno and the southern camps, but he refers to the need of harmony and declares that capital should be recognized as an essential part of all pursuits. "Inflammatory speeches by professional agitators," are deplored. Following is the document in full:

State of Nevada

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

The law of this state has ordained and designated the first Monday of September in each year as Labor Day, thereby giving it equal prominence with other days set apart, respected and observed by our people. This distinction was evidently not bestowed for the purpose of pandering to the interests or prejudices of any one class or occupation, for every one is supposed to labor in some capacity, not only for his own interest, but also for the public good. It is certainly apparent that the intention is to honor labor in all pursuits, recognizing capital as a very essential part, to be respected in the harmonious adjustment of all differences that may arise.

Now, therefore, I respectfully invite the people of this state to give due observance to the day by assembling together in friendly council, and discussing conditions in a dispassionate way, and not to be influenced by inflammatory speeches made by professional agitators from any source whatever. The differences heretofore encountered have been controlled and compromised without permanent loss in value, and without violence to human life. This conservative method existing between capital and labor has given confidence in the future progress of Nevada beyond the proud position now held. To command respect, law and order must always control. Let us continue to be just to each other and all will prosper.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of State to be affixed. Done at Carson City, this 2d day of August, 1907.

JOHN SPARKS,
Governor.

Attest:
W. G. DOUGLASS,
Secretary of State.

LET HIS CHILD DIE UNTREATED

Christian Scientist Sent to Jail for 30 Days by New York Court.

FATHER BELIEVED IN PRAYER

No Physician Was Called and Judge Says Not to Furnish Medicine Was Wrong.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—For refusing to furnish medical attendance for his 6-year-old daughter, Viola, Clarence W. Byrne, a salesman, who lives at 219 West 11th street, has been sent to the Tombs for 30 days.

Byrne is a Christian Scientist. About May 1 last little Viola was taken ill and a few days later she died of bronchial pneumonia.

The father refused to call a physician, but treated her according to Christian Science methods.

He was found guilty of violating Section 288 of the Penal Code, which declares that "a person who wilfully omits, without lawful excuse, to perform a duty by law imposed upon him, to furnish food, clothing, shelter or medical attendance to a minor," is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Justice McKean, who wrote the opinion, in which the other judges concur, says: "The defendant excuses himself upon the plea of want of faith in medicine and medical doctors, believing implicitly in the methods of Christian Science, which in healing physical disorders relies solely upon the efficacy of prayer. The sole question is whether the omission to furnish 'medical attendance' under such circumstances constitutes a lawful excuse."

The judge says that to answer that question in the affirmative by granting a motion to arrest judgment would establish a precedent taht might be extremely vexatious in other directions.

BACK IN RENO AFTER 27 YEARS

Los Angeles Man Who Made Fortune Freighting to Carson Visits His Old Home.

HE FINDS THE TOWN CHANGED

No City He Has Seen Has Advanced So Rapidly and Substantially As This.

After 27 years' absence, R. C. MacCormack returned yesterday to Reno, accompanied by his wife, to pay a visit to the scenes of his early activities. Though not finding quite the change in Reno that Rip Van Winkle found upon his return home, there were enough to make Mr. MacCormack sigh at the recollection of the "good old days."

Thirty-five years ago he was freighting between Reno and Carson, and then he laid the foundation of his fortune. He makes his home now in Los Angeles, but is heavily interested in property in Seattle as well. It was purely a mater of sentiment that led him to visit Reno after the lapse of so many years.

"Last time I registered at a hotel here," said Mr. MacCormack last evening, as he sat on the plazza at the Riverside hotel overlooking the Truckee, "was at the old Lake house, which stood on the very spot where this house of Gosse's now stands. I saw today during my walks about town a few—very few—of the old landmarks still standing. Really, the old Truckee is about the only thing that looks quite natural.

"In all my travels I have never seen a city that has advanced so rapidly and so substantially as Reno. The development here is so thorough that scarcely any of the old buildings are standing, which is remarkable in less than three decades. A good many of my old friends are gone, too. In fact, the old guard is thinning out pretty rapidly."

In honor of his birthday, which fell yesterday, Mr. and Mrs. MacCormack entertained at dinner last night at the Riverside, some of the friends of the old days. After the dinner, which was an informal affair, Mr. MacCormack, "Dan" Wheeler and Harry Gosse entertained themselves and all the guests of the hotel who were enjoying the cool evening breeze on the veranda, by singing "Old Black Joe."
